WHY

Ensuring the health, safety and security of port workers and the port environment is of utmost importance for port managers and operators. A comprehensive health and safety programme that is fully supported by the organisation is crucial to achieving operational excellence and sustainable growth. Both the Port Authority and port companies have the responsibility to create a secure environment for all individuals who work in and around the port or visit it.

FOR WHOM

This programme is available to all individuals, who are involved in promoting health and safety in the workplace and enhancing security within the port and terminal area.

WHAT

This programme covers all essential aspects of managing the health and safety of port workers and the security of ships, cargo, passengers and port terminals. Through a four-week online learning programme and a live week in Antwerp with site visits and workshops, participants will gain valuable insights and tools to support them in organising and advocating health, safety and security issues.

The programme consists of 5 modules:

1 Rules and regulations

- SOLAS
- IMO
- Port rules and regulations
- ISO – Safety Management System
- ISPS

2 Health & Safety

- Safety awareness
- Marine health and medical safety
- Operational safety

3 Dangerous Goods Management

- Administrative controls of dangerous goods
- Dangerous goods handling
- Firefighting

4 HSS & technologies

- Cyber Security
- Innovative projects on safety and security in and around the port area

5 Port security and contingency

- PFSO
- Role of customs and police
- Emergency response and contingency planning

6 Live week in Antwerp

Site visits to different companies, terminals and warehouses in and around the port area and customs at Port of Antwerp-Bruges.
